Dear Martin Mathieson,

I am just approaching the end of a Sabbatical year and will be resuming my talks at Parklands, which will take place usually on the last Sunday of the month, though this, owing to date-inequalities, is not always so. If you wish to attend, perhaps you would telephone just before the month-end to check the date. As we tend to be over-full, it is not possible to give unlimited invitations to 'friends of friends', which, in the circumstances you will, no doubt, understand.

The vocabulary we use may not at first be easily harmonised with that of historical philosophy, which has a different purpose to ours, but this is easily assimilated once its phonetic principles are understood.

Thank you for the S.A.E and short history of your work to date.

Best wishes,

Yours faithfully,

Eugene Halliday.

P.S. If you receive this before this week-end, we are meeting this Sunday, when you might attend if you wish. E.H.
